DECAT OF PEACH TREES .- A singular fact, and one worthy of being recorded, was mentioned a faw days since by Mr. Alexander Duke, of Albermarle. He stated that whilst on a visit to his neighbor, his attention was called to a large or-chard, every tree in which had been totally destroyed by the raveges of the worm, with the exception of three; and these three were probably the most thrifty and flourishing peach trees he over saw. The only cause of their superiority known to his host was an experiment made in consequence of observing that parts of worm-caten timber, into which mails had been driven, were generally sound. When his trees were about a year old, he had selected three of them and driven a tenpenny nail through the body, as near the ground as possible, whilst the balance of the orchard had gradually failed, and finally yielded entirely to the ravages of the worms, the trees, selected at random, treated precisely in the same manner, with the exception of the nailing, had always been vigorous and healty, formishing at that very period the greatest profusion of the most luscious fruit. It is supposed that the salt most luscious fruit. It is supposed that the sale of iran afforded by the nail is offensive to the worm, while it is harmless, or even be the tree-Plant.
